Updated October 6, 2020Fishing or duck hunting is a lot of fun, but it involves being close to – or on – water. Often you will be on a small boat, on your own or moving around at dawn. That said, there's always a risk, and remove that you need a good fishing vest. The good news is that if you choose the right one, you can get some useful additional storage for your device. Whether you are fly fishing, kayaking, fishing in a float tube, or just on the pier, the best fishing life jackets will keep you comfortable, organized and of course safe. If you have your canine friend tag together, be sure to also wear a dog life jacket. Note: Due to COVID-19, some of the products listed below may be temporarily sold out. As another option, look LeisurePro.com for additional fishing life jackets. Our 5 Favorite Fishing Life VestsFishing Life Vest Reviews #1 – Stohlquist Fisherman PFDare you wondering if Stohlquist Fisherman is up to the task of chasing muskies or even some early morning duck fishing? No! This vest looks like it was designed by Navy SEALs making it our pick for the best fishing life jacket. It's sleek, low-profile and hard – the shell is heavy Cordura, with a softer Oxford lining for comfort – and packs in a lot of buoyancy. There are two generous chest panels and a rear panel that is set high to keep out of the seat backs in the boat or in the cockpit of the kayak. The open sides leave full arm movement and the rich adjustment straps – two on each side plus one on each arm – make it easy to adapt perfectly. It'll keep you afloat, but will it keep all the equipment you need handy? Yes, absolutely! There are two large front pockets with reinforced front panels that open and fold to form work surfaces – the support straps keep them horizontal so you can work with hooks, shot or other end tilt without the need for additional hands. It's a real fly-fishing bonus. It's not just plain pockets. Each has an open inner pocket and zipped mesh, plus looks to hold hemostats, pliers or other tools. As the final clean touch, the front panels are lined Velcro surface of the loop, so you can glue the blocks to them. Each of the pockets has plenty of space small boxes, compact radios and other essentials. Then each chest panel has an elastic loop for the whistle whistle Compact flashlight and grooved hardpoint with elastic strap ready. There is absolutely no shortage of places to store the device. The fisherman comes in two color variants. The most popular is the discreet green cactus, which will not fly any wildlife. There is also a bright yellow option with reflective strips front and back. Yellow is your best choice if you're going to open water.'' – NRS Chinook Fishing PFDRS Chinook Fishing PFD is one of the most comfortable fishing life jackets you'll ever put on. Available in 3 sizes and with 8 editing points, this PFD fits almost any person. It's great for fly fishing, kayaking, canoe fishing, or even fishing from an inflatable pontoon (pretty much any kind of fishing). Many even use it for white water rafting. Using paddists? Chinook can be worn over them just fine. The mesh high back is designed to fit perfectly above the kayak. This is one well designed life jacket for fishing, because all pockets (there are 7) seem to be placed in optimal places. The only negatives we've seen are that some users think the pockets are a bit on the small side and tend to warm up a bit behind the front panels as well, while the vest actually feels a bit more comfortable than the Stohlquist, the material doesn't feel that durable. Fantastic Vesttheless.'' Click to check current prices '' Onyx Kayak Fishing Life JacketOne of the most impressive Type 3 PFDs for anglers on the market, Onyx's kayak fishing vest is full of features. Basic zipped pockets, fleece-lined pockets and a chest pocket are accompanied by a snap-close top slot for easy access to the radio or tools. The drop down tray pocket can be accessed at the touch of a button and can hold a small hoist box. There is also a whip loop that holds various items, so this vest is the ideal storage space for longer fishing trips. The padding on the back of the vest is higher to provide better ground clearance, while the bottom is webbed for excellent breathability. The six straps allow for precise adjustment, not only for the body fit, but also for the bill for boat or kayak seat heights. The vest comes in two sizes: versatile, which is suitable for measuring the chest from 30 inches to 52 inches, and an oversized one that fits 40 to 60 inches of chest. We specifically recommend this PFD fishing for the bigger guys out there. While the pockets are not waterproof, the vest is designed with sufficient drainage to help keep the vest dry. Finally, this Coast Guard-approved life jacket provides approximately 15 pounds of lift pressure, which is well above the level 3 requirements of 7 to 12 pounds.'' Click to check the current price '' Absolute Outdoor Onyx M-24 Manual Inflatable VestMost Anglers as a vest with lots of storage. But if you are minimalist or need something ultra-elegant to work in narrow places, something like Stohlquist Fisherman can be a little too bulky. This manual inflatable vest Onyx M-24 (available in camo camo more traditional red/black) could be perfect for you in this situation. It's just a lightweight harness with a waist belt, back straps and two chest straps like the ones on the backpack. However, inside the right strap there is a canister of compressed carbon dioxide; Pull out the T-handle at the bottom of this strap, and it will immediately inflate into a Coast Guard-approved flotation vest. If you're fishing or fishing in hot weather, this inflatable fishing vest will keep you cooler than any conventional vest. Thanks to its compact size, Onyx is an almost great PFD kayak and PFD sailing. The disadvantage of an inflatable vest is that it can only be used once before it has to replace the CO2 cartridge. Luckily it's cheap and easy to do.'' Click to check current prices ''#5 - Extrasport Osprey Fishing VestThe Osprey doesn't look like a life jacket at all; it has a really military look, with a total of seven pockets and a series of shell loops on the left breast. It's also only available in camouflage or khaki, over black mesh. Under the tactical exterior it's a fully functional flotation device, though, complete with zipper, straps with two buckles and lots of adjustments. Like the Stohlquist, it is also shaped for the convenience of kayaking. If your top priority is equipment storage, it's hard to beat – even if your pockets aren't as flexible as the Fishermen's, there are more.'' Inflatable life jackets, or personal flotation equipment (PFD), differ from real life jackets in that they are designed to provide extra buoyancy for confident swimmers rather than save the life of an unconscious person in the water. PFD are more comfortable to wear, provide greater freedom of movement and should be rated as Type II, Type III or Type V by the U.S. Coast Guard. They can inflate manually or automatically and are sometimes intended for use for specific water sports. Below are the best inflatable life jackets. The 01 of Amazon's 07 Absolute Outdoor Onyx AM-24 Deluxe Inflatable Life Jacket is made of durable 420-denier ripstop nylon and USCG-approved type V PFD with Type III performance. Pull out the Jerk to Inflate handle to inflate the vest or let it automatically inflate when immersed. You can convert from auto/manual inflation to manual-only inflation rate. Either way, the life jacket provides a minimum buoyancy of £22.5 when inflated. It is also extremely comfortable thanks to its lightweight, low-profile design. A soft wetsuit around the neckline prevents adding, while the bottom, back and straps are equipped with padded air mesh panels. Reflective piping increases your visibility at night, while the d-ring attachment is suitable for adding safety accessories such as a whistle or flashlight. Save your in a padded pocket of sunglasses with fleece lining and other personal belongings in the pockets of the vest. It is designed for people aged 16 and older (or more than 80 pounds) and is not recommended for weak or non-swimmers. 02 of the 07 Mustang Survival Corp M.I.T. 100 Auto Activation PFD is a USCG-approved Type III PFD (or Type V PFD for commercial use). It boasts exclusive membrane inflatable technology™ inflation cell, making it lighter, more flexible and more comfortable. Automatic inflation kicks in within seconds of hitting the water and helps the self-right most wearers. The vest also includes a hand-held inflatable cord and an oral inflatable tube. When fully inflated, it provides 26 pounds of buoyancy – which is again half as much as traditional PFD foam. Use a transparent window to check the inflator and an easy access flap to replace the CO2 canister. The vest has a 500-denier outer shell and a thick polypropylene waist strap and harness. It comes in a variety of different colours (including black, orange and camouflage) and is only recommended for low impact water sports. 03 of 07 Courtesy of Dick's Sports Goods with its simple design and affordable price-tag, the MTI Expedition 2 Life Vest is a great choice for casual boaters or those that need to be bought in bulk. It is incredibly light, weighs less than one pound in total. Its moulded front foam panels provide a comfortable fit, while the four adjustment points allow you to customize the vest to your specific size. The outer shell is made of 300-denier polyester. It features bright colors to increase visibility and is USCG-approved as a Type III PFD. 04 of 07 Available in blue, grey or orange, the Astral Buoyancy V-Eight Life Jacket offers ergonomic design and lightweight construction. It can be used for a wide range of different water sports, but is especially suitable for kayaking. First, the revolutionary airflow system prevents excessive heat build-up and keeps you cool even when you develop in warm weather. Secondly, the mesh allows for a comfortable fit against the high seat backs. Pre-shaped foam panels provide 16.2 pounds of always prepared buoyancy – enough for a confident swimmer in an area where quick rescues are likely. Other useful features include a large front pocket, a quick access pad for attaching a knife, and an inner storage case. The USCG-approved vest also comes in a range of sizes and uses reflective linings to increase visibility in low light. Continue to 5 of 7 below. 05 of 07 NRS Chinook Fishing PFD is specially designed with fishermen in mind, whether you're fly fishing, paddling pool or kayaking. It features foam flotation panels that match your body shape and provide 16.5 pounds of buoyancy, and mesh in the lower back for more ventilation and a great fit for seats with high backrests. You can use eight editing points to customize your save. Best of all, the vest provides a comfortable storage device. Hide your fly box or tippet in one seven seven front pockets and a cutter on the reel with a coil. There is a loop that holds your strobe, loops for attaching rod holders, a loop for your knife and extra D-rings to attach everything you might need. Colors include charcoal, black, green and orange. 06 of the 07 USCG-approved Type III PFD, stohlquist baby personal flotation device is an excellent choice for children weighing between 30 and 50 lb. It provides 8 pounds, 6 ounces of buoyancy and features wrap-around flotation that automatically turns the baby face up in water. Double support collars also help support your little one's head. The handle on the back of the vest allows you to quickly get the baby if it falls overboard. The front zipper has a quick-release buckle over the top for added safety, while the adjustable crotch strap is suitable for a comfortable fit. The outer shell of the vest is made of durable 200-denier nylon and comes in red or yellow or neutral blue with high visibility. 07 of 07 Adventure Dogs also need inflatable life jackets – which is where the outer Granby Splash PFD hound comes in. Available in several sizes, it is designed to buoyancy in water without restricting movement on land. The anterior neck float helps keep the dog's head afloat, while the neoprene belly band supports their chest and stomach. Use double grip handles to pull your dog out of the water in case of emergency. Bright orange color and reflective piping make the vest easy to spot even in harsh conditions, while Velcro cards prevent vest straps from getting stuck on submerged obstacles. What to look for in an inflatable life vest Purpose What you do in the water can affect what kind of life jacket you should wear. Inflatable vests should never be worn by pipes, wakeboarding, or white-water rafting. However, some inflatable vests are designed to be more efficient than older models, with inconspicuous designs that allow weapons to move without narrowing. These types may be more suitable for activities such as kayaking and fishing. In addition, some models are specially designed to be used only by people who know how to swim well – so be sure to check. Inflation Method Personal flotation equipment can be inflated manually or automatically (and some offer both options). With hand inflating, you can swim with uninflated PFD and just pull out the cable to inflate the vest you should need. But automatic inflation means that if you're in the ocean and having trouble – say, unconscious – the vest inflates without having to do anything.Comfort Not only does it depend on height and weight when you're looking to buy a life jacket, but other aspects of its design can have an impact when it comes to fit. Comfort is especially important because you have to wear it against wet and dry clothes, sometimes for hours at a time. Make sure the vest does not rub awkwardly on the skin or swimmer's seams before Take him home. Home.
